Dallas' restaurant scene is more active than ever, and it can be hard to keep up. We rounded up the latest and greatest in food happenings to determine the Dallas 10 restaurants you need to know about. These are your must-visits.

From José Andrés already beloved D.C. transplant Zaytinya to Matt McCallister's soon-to-shutter FT33, here are your dining plans for the immediate future.

Da Mario

The North's dining scene got yet another gem this spring with the opening of Da Mario, a posh Italian restaurant at The Star in Frisco. Emerald-tiled walls, 1940s-inspired modern lighting and mahogany bar carts create a dreamy setting; while hand-crafted pasta and wood-fired pizza will transport you to Italy for lunch.
